Functionalism is more popular than ever. Ranging from the aesthetic doctrine developed in the early 20th cent. out of Louis Henry Sullivan's aphorism that "Form ever Follows Function" over the German Bauhaus style to the Finnish architect Alvar Aalto functionalism always has played a significant role in design. The fundament being that the style of architecture should reflect its purpose.

That made sense at Louis Henry Sullivan's time, and continued to do so for much of the last century, not just for buildings, but objects too.

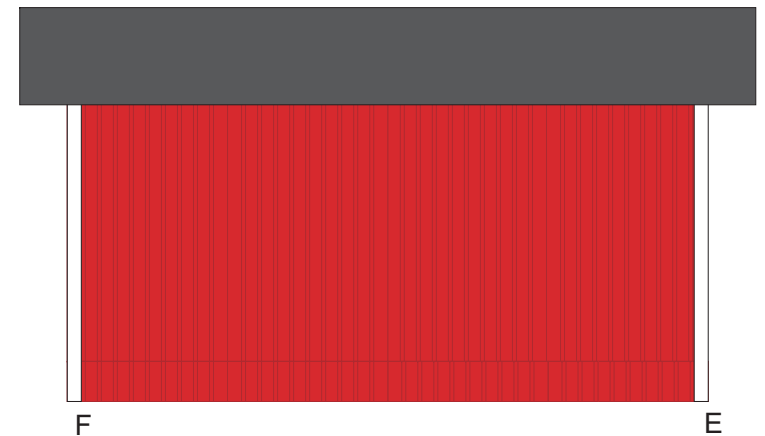

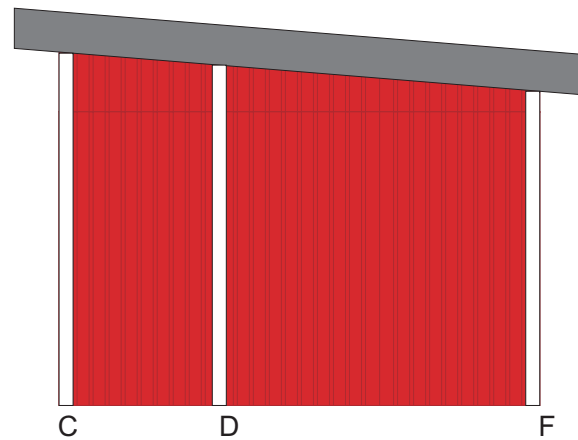

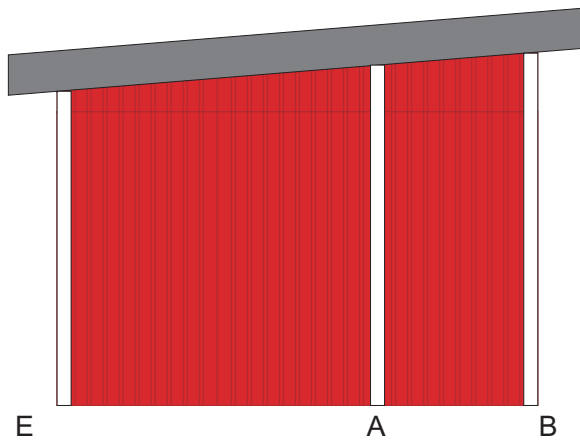

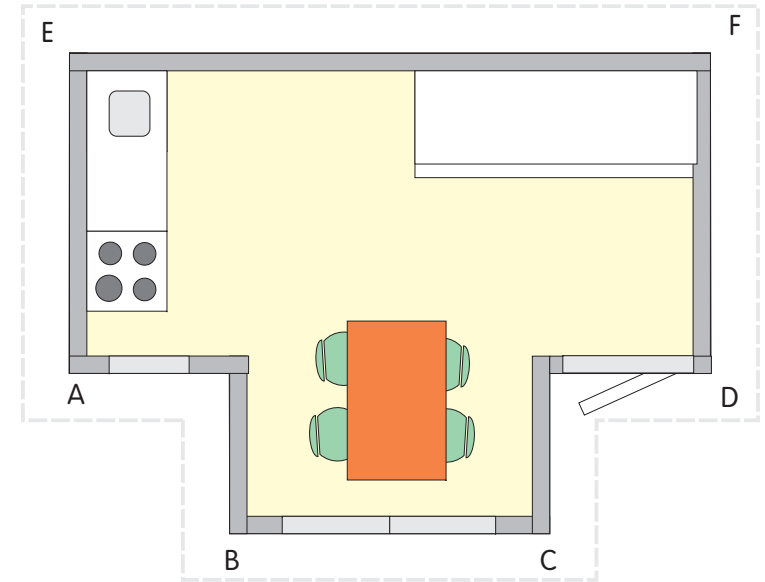

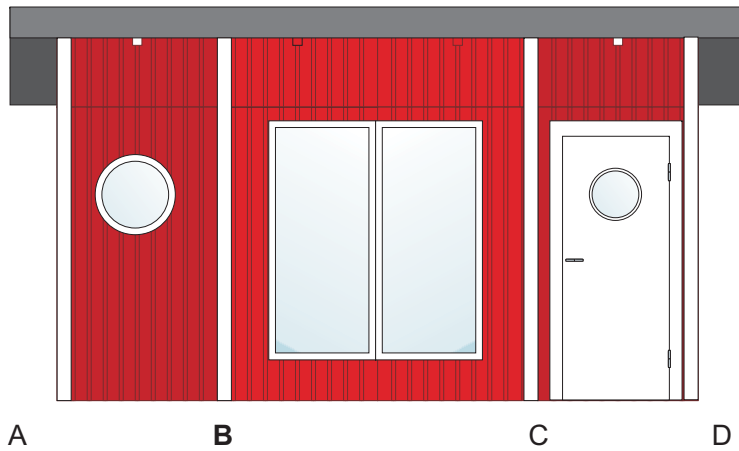

Italians say "ti amo funzionalismo " we say functimo The whole functimo concept is build on functional, easy to assemble, elements designed in well known functionalistic style.
